In the San Francisco County Court yesterday Judge Wright fixed the bail of George Thistleton at $1,500 on the Tubbs case, pending the hearing on the writ of error set for July 9th. The motion for bail on the Flanagan and Gallagher case was denied, without prejudice, as the necessary papers were not in Court. The motion will be heard some time this week, when the papers from the City Criminal Court shall have been procured.

The expense of an American commission and an American department at the Paris Exposition next year is estimated at $300,000. The space is reserved by the French authorities awaiting the acceptance of our Government.

Property Owners Attention!

CAUTION.

ARTIFICIAL STONE PAVEMENT,

Schillinger's Patent.

THE UNDERSIGNED IS THE SOLE AND exclusive owner of Schillinger's Patent for the State of California. Said patent was granted to John J. Schillinger, July 19th, 1870, and was re-issued May 2d, 1871. The said Patent has been repeatedly sustained and damages and costs inflicted upon infringers of it by the Courts. The following are the claims of the Patent, viz:

1. A concrete pavement laid in detached blocks or sections substantially in the manner shown and described.

2. The arrangement of tar paper or its equivalent between adjoining blocks of concrete, substantially as and for the purposes set forth. All property owners having artificial stone pavements laid in detached blocks or sections are infringing one or both of the claims of said patent, as are also the parties laying such pavements; and every property holder is hereby notified that he will be prosecuted for every infringement of said patent in which he participates.

The great success of this pavement has induced many irresponsible persons to infringe the patent, and at the same time wrong their employers by contracting to lay the pavements and then doing inferior jobs.

The undersigned is prepared to lay sidewalks, garden walks, carriage drives, floors, etc.

All work guaranteed.

LEVER POWER!

GREAT INVENTION!

United States Patent Secured

WILLIAM MEYERS, OF WEST OAKland has invented a pump, which, for economy and simplicity, has no equal. One horse can pump as much water by this process as five horses can by any other process known. Steam, horse, water or hand power can be used to a much better advantage than by the present system of working pumps. Its cost is 80 per cent. below the average cost of steam pumps, and its pumping capacity and speed is twice the average of the present pump. The use of it can well be recommended to farmers for irrigating purposes; to owners of all classes of sailing crafts and steamboats; miners and mill owners. One of these pumps is now in operation on the large vegetable plot of Domingo Grandona and Frank Bereman, at West Oakland, located at the head of Wood street. In an ordinary run of 10 hours, with one horse, 90,000 gallons of water is pumped from a depth of 40 feet. These machines, fully equipped, only costs $350. Orders solicited. Address, William Meyers, 1463 Seventh street, or Oakland Postoffice.

Municipal Debts.

If the next Legislature is not asked to allow Oakland the privilege of issuing a fresh batch of bonds for something or other, it will be an exceptional session in that respect so far as concerns Oakland. We don't know just what we want, but the time will soon be along when persons will rise up and tell the dear public what should be done in the way of running in debt. Compared with many other cities, Oakland has not been a very foolish spendthrift. We can claim but little credit, however, on that score; for the greater portion of the city's indebtedness was incurred when the city was small. It is easy to contract debts, the propensity to spend public money being strong in the individual citizen's breast. The old adage that what is "everybody's business is nobody's business" is nowhere more applicable than in the general administration of municipal affairs. It is so easy to roll up a debt to be taken care of by those who come after us, instead of levying a severe tax to be paid by ourselves. Following this ready, convenient, lazy method of shifting the burdens of to-day, has been the means of precipitating on many of our most favored and promising cities a vast load of taxation, which hampers business, oppresses property, and prevents accession of population. If there are any schemes in contemplation for increasing the indebtedness of the city, they should be laid before the public in time to permit of examination.

Immigration.

There has been a remarkable falling off in immigrant arrivals at Atlantic ports from Europe of late, according to the Eastern press. The New York Herald says nearly all the steerage passengers have been here before, and are composed in some degree of a class of small traders who save the expenses of a voyage by smuggling in goods through their trunks. Those who are coming are intelligent people, and many, if not the great majority of them, having been here before, they are abundantly capable of taking care of themselves. There is a good deal of travel to and from Europe in the steerage of persons who are taking advantage of the present low rates of fare to see the old and the new worlds, the curious of the old world coming to the new and those of the new world going to the old. According to some of the prominent ocean steamship officials it is probable that it will be a long time before the influx of laborers and farmers into this country from Europe will reach even the minimum of former and more prosperous days.

Revaccination.

There has been a difference of opinion among medical men as to whether revaccination need ever be repeated. The London Lancet asserts a second repetition is not only unnecessary, but that the practice is to be deprecated. In support of this view is the fact that the nurses and other servants of the London small-pox hospital, when they enter the service are invariably submitted to vaccination, which in their case is generally revaccination, and is never afterward repeated; and so perfect is the protection that, though the nurses live in the closest and most constant attendance on the patients, and though also the other servants all in various ways exposed to special chances of infection, the resident surgeon of the hospital, during his forty-one years of office there, has never known small-pox to affect any of these nurses or servants.

A Hint.

In some portions of this State the people are considering the advisability of putting up the offices of County and City Treasurer to open competition of those who perform the duties of the position and amply secure the safety of the public money. The Sacramento Bee earnestly favors such a plan for its city and county, and urges some very sensible reasons therefor. There are responsible men in every community who would be willing to pay for the privilege of being Treasurer. The pretense that the safety of the public funds would be endangered if they were entrusted to a banking or commercial house is all nonsense. It is the security given by the Treasurer, and not the man nor the name of the office nor the manner in which he is chosen upon which the people rely for the safety of the public funds.

Kohler's Explanation.

In the TRIBUNE of yesterday an item appeared in relation to some "domestic differences" which have heretofore marred the peace and quiet of Mr. Wm. Kohler, proprietor of a saloon on Broadway near Sixth street. Mr. Kohler states that the item was incorrect inasmuch as his wife is the sister-in-law, and not the sister of Mr. Charles Jurgens; and that he did not wed her expecting she would bring him a fortune. He also avers that there were but few spectators of the final disagreement between himself and his wife yesterday morning. It is to be hoped that Mr. Kohler will hereafter so conduct himself and his family affairs as to give the press no occasion for comment.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

The Boston Journal says the shipbuilders in Massachusetts and Maine claim that they can build for the same money ships that will last longer than those built abroad.

Gov. Emery of Utah, in a private letter to a friend in Chicago, says: "Perhaps you see a good deal about the Nauvoo Legion. There is nothing in it but sensation."

The Halifax Herald says it is understood that if England takes part in the war between Russia and Turkey, an effort will be made to raise a regiment in Nova Scotia to proceed to the seat of war.

A Texas paper reports that the Postmaster in Denton, that State, threw out of the mail in one day lately three centipedes, two tarantu as and one horned frog. No mention is made of his drinking habits.

William Cullen Bryant is seemingly as vigorous to-day as he was twenty years ago. He lately read "Thanatopsis" at an evening gathering with all the fire and energy of youth, using a book badly printed in small type, and having no spectacles.

Joseph Iasgi, an old Boston merchant, died on Tuesday. He was an Armenian by birth, came in 1837 to Boston, and at the time of his death was Turkish Consul-General, a position he held for many years. He was a classical scholar, and in religion an attendant upon the Roman Catholic services.

Prof. Bell, of Boston, has made arrangements for the construction of regular telephonic lines by which conversations can be carried on over twenty miles or less. The intention is to charge $20 a year for the use of two telephones for social purposes, and $40 for two devoted to commercial purposes, the lessees being free from all charges for construction and maintenance, except in case of accidents from great carelessness.

Politics and literature have great attractions for the Quincys. There was an early intermarriage between the Quincys and Adamses, whence came the name of John Quincy Adams, and another intermarriage, between a son of Edmund Quincy and a daughter of Mr. C. F. Adams, is soon to take place. John Hancock's wife was a Quincy, and so was Dr. Holmes's celebrated ancestress, "Dorothy Q.," while Miss Alcott is descended, through the Sewalls, from another Quincy.

Millais, the English painter, is engaged upon a novel subject. It is to represent the ceremony, annually performed, of searching the basement of the houses of Parliament by twelve yeomen of the guard before the opening of the Legislature. The figures of the yeomen in scarlet, black, and gold, and the light of their torches, affords scope for striking effects and picturesque arrangement. The ceremony is a continuation of a custom which followed the discovery of the Guy Fawkes plot in the time of James I.

Massachusetts has a society for the university education of women, and it is making an attempt to secure the endowment of a Professorship for women in Boston University. They allude to the number of young women already studying in the College of Liberal Arts, and say that the present opportunity "appeals as strongly to those who believe that young ladies during no period of their education should be deprived of womanly counsel and care, as to those who merely seek for women ever new and more influential positions in society."

The Emperor of Brazil visited the Salpetriere Hospital in Paris, the other day, to witness experiments of Dr. Burg's system of restoring sensibility to paralyzed limbs by the application of metals. For nearly two hours he watched with attention in the hospital wards the Professor running bodkins through the flesh of arms and legs in which there was no feeling, and saw, a few minutes after the application of copper or gold, according to the idiosyncrasy of the patient, the slightest prick draw blood and produced screams. He was particularly struck by the case of a girl, certified to have had her arm useless some days previous, who was able to lift heavy weights.

The popular magazine writer, Miss Frances Hodgson, now Mrs. Barrett, was born in Mancester, England, twenty-seven years ago. She came to this country at the age of 15, and has since been wholly American in her associations and experiences. At 16 she began to write,—for money rather than for fame,—producing short stories chiefly, and writing with great rapidity. After some years of this kind of work, which though doubtless excellent practice, failed to win for her any serious encouragement, she wrote and sent to Scribner's Monthly a little Laurcashire story, entitled "Surly Tim's Trouble." This won the favor of a discerning public. "That Lass o' Lowrie's," her last work, is a fully fledged novel, and it is highly praised by the highest critical authorities.

The English are becoming a nation of practical jokers, much as they despise the vulgar talent. A highly respected member of the civil service, who is a well-known author and holds an important position in the House of Commons office, recently received a communication inviting him to proceed to Constantinople and take upon himself the task of organizing the newly-constituted Turkish Parliament. The official consulted the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Earl of Beaconsfield, and finally decided to accept the proposition. He wrote to the Turkish Embassy accordingly, and to his astonishment received a letter stating that the Embassador knew nothing of the previous communication, and that his services were not required. Red tape gave a high color to this silly hoax.

The late head of the Greek Church at St. Petersburg is thus described: "That a fine carriage, with six horses the first two bearing postilions in long frock coats and prodigious cocked hats with two footmen back of the carriage, in the same costume, and the coachman holding the reins in Russian style, with outstretched arms and palms upward, contains the Metropolitan of St Petersburg. He is a venerable looking old man, with a long, snowy beard, and a straight head-dress like a brimless hat, covered with white cashmere, which falls behind. His forehead is surmounted by a diamond cross, his long, loose robe hangs in folds, and his breast is covered with crosses and stars. The people salute him and uncover their heads with much reverence, and he raises his hand as if he were bestowing a benediction upon them."

Poti, the Russian port on the Black Sea which the Turks have bombarded, is described in the "Pall Mall Gazette" as bearing a marked resemblance to Eden—not the original garden, but Martin Chuzzlewit's American home. It is the terminus of the railway from Tiflis. Its situation is in a swamp rather below the waters of the Rion, which are only prevented by embankments from sweeping over the place; is said to combine every disqualification for a commercial town. The Dwelling places are for the most part log shanties raised on piles above pools of stagnant water. The streets are bordered by large ditches brimming with sluice, and fever and ague are written on the faces of the residents. Frogs are the only living creatures which thrive in the place. Their ceaseless chorus resounds all night long about it, and it is asserted by the inhabitants that the sound when the wind blows that way is audible even at Constantinople.

BODY OF A HERO FOUND.

Frank Hodgin's Body Found, with the Little Bernstein Boy Still Clinging to His Neck.

Yesterday morning a French man-of-war anchored between Goat Island and the end of Long Wharf and fired a number of heavy guns. The heavy concussion doubtless caused the bodies of the heroic young Frank Hodgin and the little Bernstein boy to rise, for late in the afternoon they drifted ashore on Sheep Island, north of Berkeley. The boy fell from the south side of the wharf, near the boat house, late Saturday afternoon, when Frank Hodgin, night switchman at the end of the wharf, plunged overboard to save the little fellow. He got the boy on his back and made an effort to swim back to the piles, but the tide was too strong for him and he

DRIFTED AWAY

Toward the training walls along the creek bar, and before a boat could reach him both went down and were drowned. The tide turned soon afterward, and it is believed that the bodies drifted back and settled upon the bottom somewhere in the vicinity of the wharf, and that the heavy concussion of the French guns fired yesterday caused them to rise, when they were carried northward by the tidal current which sweeps along the Oakland beach. When found on the shore of Sheep Island the little drowned boy had his arms still clasped with the grip of death about the neck of the dead hero who sought to save him—and the suggestion has been made that they be buried together and a monument raised to commemorate their sad fate and perpetuate the memory of the

HEROIC FRANK HODGIN.

Morris C. Bernstein, father of the unfortunate little boy, went up to-day to Sheep Island to bring the bodies back for interment. In this connection, we would renew our suggestion that the people of Oakland raise a liberal purse for the young widow of the dead hero—and we would urge the matter all the more earnestly at this time as we understand the widowed mother is in destitute circumstances, and instead of one will soon have two little orphans to feed and clothe. Certainly an act of such spontaneous and unselfish heroism as that by which Frank Hodgin lost his life should receive some substantial recognition from an enlightened and Christian community like that of Oakland. Contributions for this purpose will be received at the TRIBUNE office. Who else will put the ball in motion?

ZETA PSI.

Seventh Grand Annual of the Iota Chapter Held at Dietz Hall.

Oration by W. C. Bartlett Esq., And Poem by Daniel O'Connell.

A numerous and highly select audience comfortably filled Dietz' Opera House last evening, the occasion being the seventh annual of the Iota Chapter of the Zeta Psi Fraternity. A short introductory address was made by W. M. Van Dyke, who, in a general way explained the object of College secret societies, and the benefits arising from these annual gatherings. Mr. Van Dyke then introduced as poet of the evening, Mr. Daniel O'Connell, of San Francisco, who read a poem entitled, "General Polk at Lost Mountain." Generous applause greeted Mr. O'Connell's effort, and the orator of the evening, Mr. W. C. Bartlett, was introduced and delivered an oration, his theme being, "The Hour and the Opportunities." Long-continued applause awarded the orator, and while Ballenberg's musicians gave a selection the audience adjourned. The members of the Chapter and graduated Zetes in Oakland proceeded to Nicholl Hall, where they indulged in the pleasures of the dance. Subjoined will be found the poem of Mr. O'Connell, and Mr. Bartlett's oration:

General Polk at Lost Mountain.

The army of the Cumberland by tent and camp-fire lay,
Beneath Lost Mountain's shadows, entrenched in grim array.

Soldiers slumbered by their rifles, Captains kept their sabers nigh,
And sentries paced their watches with a keen and wakeful eye.

From Kennesaw's steep summit, the rebel troops looked down
On the Federal lines extending towards Maryetta town.

Where many a Southern maiden knelt in earnest prayer for those
Who, at the morrow's dawning, must encounter Georgia's foes.

The Captain of the battery looked upward to the hill,
"This evening," said the soldier, "the rebel yell is still."

"Sweet and soft the summer gloaming—how the breeze sighs through the wood,
"A dirge for the to-morrow, when these grass blades shall drip blood.

"Come hither, trusty gunner, mark yon bivouac on high,
"Where Lost Mountain's crest is outlined against the darkling sky.

"Now aim your gun right skillfully and let the echoes prove,
"That we're keeping faithful watch and ward about the flag we love."

From Kennesaw's steep summit the soldier priest looked down
On the Federal lines beneath him, and on Maryetta town.

The Oostanaula's murmur sounded like the distant sea.
Sounded like the bubbling shallows of the rolling Tennessee.

The soldier-priest is silent, his brow is grave to-night,
He sees the great moon rising in a blaze of tender light.

His thoughts are with his old home, with children and wife;
While around him wise men are whispering of the fast approaching strife.

Near him, by the smouldering watch-fire, a lad who'd marched away
With his regiment, exulting in his sword and coat of gray.

Wan and weary crouches sadly by the bivouac—no more
The gay and gallant cavalier of a month or two before.

The General touched his shoulder—he saluted and his eyes
Looked into his loved Chieftain's in a glance of glad surprise.

"Not all pleasant work, this fighting," said Polk with kindly face,
"But cheer up, my lad, be steadfast for the honor of your race."

"Ah, General," said the Lieutenant, "not for me these tears are shed—
For the mother, for the homestead, for the happy life we led

"In the Tennessee's dear Valley"—the General turned aside
With the moisture in his own eyes, despite his soldier pride.

He gazed upon the river winding through the plain below,
Silenced in the rising moon rays, while the watch-fires of the foe

Seemed like twinkling stars beneath him, then he prayed, "Oh, God keep still
"Thy servant in those cruel times, obedient to Thy will.

"Keep his soul as meek and humble as when he preached Thy word,
"Before his eyes knew battle, his hand the soldier's sword.

"Shed Thy grace upon us all, Oh Lord of land of the North and of the South—
"Ha! See that gleaming tongue of fire the cannon belches forth.

Straight to the form bowed in prayer speeds on the fatal shell—
Peace pure heart stilled forever—Oh, soldier, priest, farewell!

The General's blood has crimsoned the youngster's coat of gray,
They throng about the hero's corpse, they bear the dead away.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Quoth the Captain of the battery "that gun was aimed aright;
"But mark how growing, growing is yonder bivouac light.

Then he shouted long and loudly "We were chuckling friend too soon;
"I'm a rebel if our powder was not wasted on the moon.

Ah! soldier, thy dire missile reached a heart as pure and grand
As the orb now beaming brightly over this fair Southern sand.

As the moon reflects the sunlight, so his great soul was fraught
With love for what he deemed the right, the cause for which he fought.

Fair blow the winds above his grave. Let those who loved him toll
That when praying for his foemen, the soldier lifeless fell.

The Hour and the Opportunities.

Under the above title, W. C. Bartlett, Esq., delivered the following philosophical, eloquent and admirable oration, eliciting frequent and hearty applause:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CHAPTER:—A recent cartoon represents the Great Chancellor of the German Empire at rest. His hands are idle; but his brain is occupied with the problems of State. His very pipe is the symbol of thought. Representatives of the leading European nations are curiously watching in the distance, this man in vacation, not unmindful of Sidney Smith's admonition to beware when the gods let loose a thinker on the earth. Fortunate they who have been so schooled in the great duties of life that all rest is work, and all work is rest.

The tramp who calls at the rear door for food, and finds fault with the culinary skill of the cook, may be no angel in disguise. Yet his distraint may have have in it an element of the picturesque; and there is a large compassion for him whose idleness is born of hard necessity. But the man who has chosen idleness is not picturesque—is not a respectable vagrant; and the owes an apology to the Lord, and all honest men that he is in the world at all.

A LEISURE CLASS.

A leisure class is not to be undervalued. Indeed, the best fruitage of the common wealth will never be realized until there are many thoughtful men and women who are emancipated from the hard bondage of mere bread winning, and are able to command both time and money for large and beneficent work. These are they who summer in large pastures, and bring home stores of honey—and the innocent spoils of all lands. It is only a transfer of activity to nobler fields where one may live more for his fellows and less for himself. The treasures of art and literature have been largely sought out and brought together by this class. They found libraries, enrich museums, and hang up pictures of immortal fame for the free inspection of the world. These men and women are not the fruitage of wealth alone. It is only when a cultivated intelligence has been married to wealth as by a sacrament, that the scholar and the prince walk together, caring little whether they have any pedigree at all, save that which begins and ends in the nobility of some beneficent work brought out for the world. Down at the very bottom of our poor humanity you may find the dreadful sham of democracy busy in levelling monuments while it places its bloody scale on the very liberty it invokes. Somewhere near the top you will find that other democracy, supreme, in the commonwealth of letters, science and art, and in the broadest philanthropy which can be inspired by love for man and love for God.

THE GUILD OF LETTERS.

What is needed here most of all, is the fellowship and inspiration of the guild of letters to ennoble wealth by putting it to noble uses. Is it not possible that the commonwealth may be very poor while bars of gold and silver are piled high up along the great avenues of trade? Never did a young State pour out its wealth in such a magnificent stream. The list of opulent men lengthens year by year. But the list of public endowments hardly lengthens at all. How rich, and for what purpose? An eccentric Senator once said that there is nothing so cowardly as a million of dollars, except ten millions. The conservatism which goes with wealth is not a bad thing. The talent to keep what one has is the crystallization of the talent for acquisition. The greater part of the business of this world in modern times is resolved into a game of keeps. The best part of the world is put in pawn once in each generation. What is wanted to go with these growing millions is courage to face the fact that time is running, swift-footed, to make new distributions. If we have come to wealth as the first estate, by what means shall we reach the second estate? How demonstrate that wealth is married to that high intelligence which plans and executes nobly?

WHAT REMAINS TO BE DONE.

We have turned the first quarter century in the history of the commonwealth. Many there are who have wrought well at the foundations. We sum up with pride the good things which have been done. Have the patience and courage, I pray you, to take account of things which remain to be done. Only by this means shall we know our opportunities. There is not a free public library in the State—not one at least in all the larger towns and cities which is worthy of the name—none in this city of more than forty thousand people so rapidly running up the scale to a hundred thousand, and having now a population with a higher average taste and intelligence than that of any other city in the Pacific States. Nor would it be wide of the mark to affirm that there is not a good working public library in the entire State, that is, such a library as would be adequate all the needs of the scholar, or for purposes of protracted scientific investigation. The most that can be said is that there are some large collections of miscellaneous books representing in a general way fiction, poetry and modern history, supplemented by a few volumes in the department of Industrial science. There is hardly more than the germ of a reference library at the State University, and there are not so many miscellaneous books for general circulation as there are students in that institution. It is a severe drouth which pinches off the wheat harvest at a bushel an acre. But what a drouth is that, and what a suggestion of famine, which pinches a student off with a single volume! And that, too, when he ought to have access to at least ten thousand volumes in the department of literature alone! There is not a well appointed museum accessible to the public in California. There are a considerable number of art galleries, the collections representing in single instances, not less than a hundred thousand dollars. But there is not a free public art gallery in the State, and most of the pictures accessible to the public have been gathered through the enterprise of private art dealers. No free libraries, museums and art galleries. But heaven be praised for the literature and art which has culminated in horses which can make a mile in two fourteen and a half!

SHAMS IN ART.

No one can measure the silent influence which a few good paintings may have as standards of art. But in default of these, is it a wonder that unconscionable dealers in sham pictures have found this one of the best markets in the country? More than enough money has been paid out in San Francisco during the last five years, for furniture pictures—better known by the slang phrase of "pot-boilers"—that would have been sufficient to found a free gallery and furnish it with a hundred good examples of modern and medieval art. We look up almost daily to the public clock as a standard for correcting our time. How shall the doubtful judgment be corrected if there be no standards of art accessible to the public? I have seen an Italian fisherman who read the character of paintings as readily as the alphabet. Going through the public art galleries of his native country, he had been half unconsciously educated into a competent critic of many schools of art. I have seen a prosperous citizen (more than one) turn away empty-handed from the studio of an artist whose fame will some day fill the land, and going to the auction mart he laid down the price of a good picture for such a sham that even for raw canvas, the fraud of the cheapest muslin had been substituted. And if, after having seen this fraud repeated for years, may not these and similar facts be used to emphasize the appeal for some more general æsthetic culture? One cannot go miles of special instances of this training, or fail to note what a subtle influence one really good picture, in a private collection, will have in driving out all the bad ones. It is precisely this influence which is needed in a large way to eliminate and drive out the shameful frauds which are perpetrated in the name of art. I would not suddenly deprive Dives of the pleasure of taking home his ten dollar picture, the work of an "old master," but consider the gain if his children should be free from such impositions. This more critical taste will find ample scope in domestic life. It will make home a thousand times more attractive. The domestic artist will be surely recognized in tones, shades, colors, the arrangement of a curtain, or a bit of tapestry, and in a subjugation of all loudness to a severer and more quiet law of taste. And this taste will reach out to a thousand nameless and indefinable things. Out of these many fractions you may possibly find the art unit of greatest value. For after all, æsthetic training will center in the household, finding its expression in books, in music, in pictures, or even in the simple engraving, and in the planting of every rose and the training of every vine. Consider what a power is lodged here to turn the hesitating footsteps out of disordered ways into the peace and saving health of home. As a stranger, you may not see this shy priestess of art, but you may see what she hath touched and glorified with her presence.

THE UNIVERSITY INTACT.

We have founded a University by many separate gifts and much patient work. Durant, Brayton, Tompkins and Felton who wrought nobly at the foundation, have gone to their rest. If there be commemoration days for those who have fallen in battle, is it less fitting that there shall be an hour of commemoration of those who rendered an exalted public service in the gentler ways of peace? It remains to cultivate and strengthen a public sentiment which shall foster and maintain this institution intact. The empiric in medicine is harmless so long as you do not take his nostrums. If educational fallacies are left to flourish only in the thin soil of empirics the drouth will finish them soon enough. It is not likely that you will get a more perfect rose or japonica by pulling it up and planting it with the top downward. There have never been wanting men who believe that they can make a diamond in half an hour as perfect as any which the Creator has been patiently finishing for twenty thousand years. Somehow, the half-hour theorists have sadly failed, while very good diamonds are still made by the old-fashioned, conservative process.

EDUCATION AND AGRICULTURE.

Shall we lose heart and the grace of patience because a great university is not brought to full maturity in one decade? To what purpose do they read history who expect a full harvest so soon after planting?—when the great universities of the world have ripened by the slow process of centuries? It has taken four thousand years of civilization to find out some improved processes of agriculture, which have culminated mainly in adopting a hand plowshare in the place of a sharpened stick, in a draft by two horses in the place of one ox and one woman. If a boy is bundled off to the university under the solemn injunction to pick up as much agricultural skill as lies along it is track of 4,000 years. (in 18 months), very likely he will revolt and become a stock speculator or a politician. But whoever instructs him that all education does not have an important bearing on the profession of agriculture, from the working out of an equation to the solution of the profoundest problem of political economy—teaches him mental and moral treason. He will make a better hoe handle, a better ox yoke, and will run the line of his furrow truer that all his faculties have been subjected to the sharpest discipline. It is not breadth of attainment which is to be avoided as wrstage, but narrowness—the specialty which cuts the groove too narrow for the highway of life, so that when one is turned out of it, he is the many handed, but is in great distrust from the very poverty of his resources. Just there you will find a reason why so many young men forsake the farm. It is not because they have been educated out of the pursuit of agriculture; but because they have never been educated into it. It is a dull, colorless, flavorless life, because there is no society of books,—no keen insight into the soul of things,—no far reaching interpretations of nature, no love of encamping mountains, no revelation in the rippling waves of gold which run athwart the ripening fields. He cannot construct a landscape out of his dreary homestead more beautiful than any artist ever put on canvas. His analysis of soil may be good enough as a specialty. But what he wants as a staying power, is the key to all sources of mental wealth, so that the world which he can create within his own boundaries is better than the world without.

EDUCATIONAL FALLACIES.

Nor is it a just impeachment to say that our system of public instruction is not industrial in its tendency. Every step of the process, from the learning of an alphabet up to the best attainments of scholarship, is the storing up of power for industrial use. The application of this power whether to manual dexterity, or to brain-work alone, can never be much more than theoretically learned in any school. For that learning covers the whole period of human activity and experience. The local school and the University provide a little capital at the outset. But neither can insure success; neither can insure even so much as a living to any man or woman. The question turns largely on what can be rightly learned in a school which is as wide as the world. Your ingot of steel will take a finer temper and a better cutting edge for having gone through the crucible; and the best preliminary training will hardly more than give a finer temper and a keener cutting edge with which one may carve his way through the world. These cardinal facts cannot be altered by any arm chair and milk toast theory, nor by any legislative devices. The more practical in this age you can make any system of public instruction the better. But at every turn and angle of life, one law will be working out its sure results. The best brain and the best hands will win, whether they are gained through ancestral inheritance, or through the training of schools, and the broader interpretation of that law is the survival of the fittest.

BUILDING HIS OWN MONUMENT.

Out yonder in the beautiful city of the dead, you may find many costly monuments The shaft, the cenotaph and mausoleum. The hour and the opportunity linger for some living man to build his own monument. How, and where shall he do it? If he will found a free library in this city, he shall have a thousand years of honest fame, and as much more as his ambition may covet. If he will endow a library and art gallery in connection with the University, his name shall be repeated on this Western shore as often as that of Berkeley. The tooth of time may eat out the lettered marble, but it will never eat out the grateful memory of such a beneficent deed. If he will so much as found a professorship of art, or follow the precedent of the lamented Tompkins by providing for any other vacant chair, let him know what a golden opportunity waits for him now. If he will work out with his prolific brain and strong bank account a public park for this city, all the uncounted thousands who walk in its pleasant ways will be the almoners of his bounty. The birds and the little children will sing his praises. How the thick coming opportunities crowd for acceptance! Have you read the new inspiration which supplements the old?—I heard a voice from heaven saying unto him—write—a check for fifty thousand dollars.

No citizens' duty in this regard can be strictly defined. There is a divine call to go apart from self—to put into some of this wealth the flavor and savor of immortality. We do not care to know who built the pyramids. But the men who have endowed hospitals, colleges, libraries, art galleries, and asylums, living or dead, are very near to the beating heart of the world. The trump of fame is only a penny whistle, and a poor one at that, compared with the augmented power which one may have after he has turned to dust—the power to speak in the ear of the world. What the young State needs most of all is to be reich in men who know the significance of these grand opportunities. Out of the grimo and coarser wrestling of the day is evolved the lengthening procession of opulent men. For these the mountains have dissolved and gone down to the sea; and the forests have been shorn, and argosies ride at anchor. They and theirs are the pioneers of the coming leisure class who will either enrich or impoverish the State.

THE BETTER GROWTH.

The chemist knows with what mordant he can give the set and tone of a royal color. What is the mordant which shall be cast in with this wealth to give it the set and tone of high endeavor? What better inspiration and what finer touch does it need to-day? By what means will you redeem the State from this hard materialism, save by the gentle and softening influences which go out from artist, poet, scholar, teacher and this, and every guild of letters which enrich the land? It is little that you cannot make up this account in a quantitive way. Neither can we measure the dew, nor the breath of the south wind which brings the rain, nor the faintest flush of purple and gold that falls upon the vintage. The great forces of the world are subtle, silent, and undermining the plane of superficial observation. Even in the stillness and seclusion of the garden you cannot tell what influences have been most potent in the perfect consummation of bud and flower. But you know that the sun and dew and atmosphere have wrought concurrently for all this wealth of upspringing life. Only let this ministry of nature be supplemented by a social ministry—one which can create an atmosphere of intellectual life, and there will be a grand fruitage here. For this author whose book is unpublished, and the artist whose pictures are turned to the wall, and the poet who writes in the attic, are biding their time. As surely as Autumn comes on apace, so these ripe and mellow days for art and literature will come. Even as one can detect from the dusty highway the aroma of ripening clusters on the hill side, so now along the dull highway of our pioneer life there are faintest odors of this better fruitage.

THE FRUITAGE.

There will be great public libraries, as free to the children of the poor as the rain and the sunshine. There will be private libraries crowding all the alcoves of the scholar and making his heart and his house run over with their treasures. There will be free art galleries illustrating all schools, where those who have won immortality speak from the walls across the chasm of ages to those who are striving for it now. There will be conservatories of music with famous teachers. There will be courses of free lectures where men as strong as Huxley and Tyndall will speak to the multitude of the mysteries of nature as of familiar things. There will be museums of natural history reaching back into the twilight of the world. There will be men whose patent of nobility will be read in the foundations, fellowships and endowments which they have provided for the rising University. If in one decade, under these skies, the century plant blossoms in its perfect fullness how shall the century be foreshortened for these consummate fruits of a riper civilization!

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

The Walnut Creek Stage Upset and the Driver's Thigh Broken

A serious accident occurred to the Oakland and Walnut Creek stage yesterday afternoon, while it was descending what is known as Charles' hill, about two and a half miles this side of Lafayette, Contra Costa county. Theodore Downing, one of the proprietors of the line, was driving a spirited four-horse team, and in descending a steep grade a lady passenger who occupied an outside seat beside him became frightened at the speed of the team and suddenly seized the lines attached to the leaders and jerked them from the hands of Mr. Downing. This frightened the leaders and they started to run away, and before the driver could recover possession of the lead lines the frightened woman reigned the leaders off the grade, near the foot of the hill, where the coach was precipitated down an embankment, some eighteen feet, into a dry ravine or wash. Mr. Downing had his

Near the hip, and the lady who caused the mishap, as well as another lady and Mr. Forrester (another of the proprietors of the stage line) who were inside the coach were badly bruised and it is feared seriously injured internally. Mr. Downing was conveyed to his residence at Concord, and the other passengers removed to Lafayette. Physicians were at once telegraphed for and started from Martinez and Oakland for the bedside of the wounded, and it was feared it would be found necessary to amputate Mr. Downing's thigh at the hip joint.

Morse, to obtain the return of property consisting of wines, liquors and cigars, and general merchandise of the value of $200, all of which was seized by the Sheriff on the 2d day of June last, and also for $500 damages.

Pinney Actually in Jail.

George M. Pinney is at last actually and not constructively in prison—he having been surrendered to the Sheriff of San Francisco last night by the police authorities and lodged in the cell on the second floor of the County Jail, formerly occupied by Laura D. Fair. This was brought about by hunting up one or two of J. W. Brumagin's creditors and inducing them to bring attachment suits against that gentleman so as to disqualify him as one of Pinney's bondsmen, whereupon Pinney was surrendered. It is intimated that as soon as Boss Carr has played his full hand of complaints, Pinney will give the necessary bail from a source not liable to be disqualified, and will step out to superintend the line of prosecutions against Carr and his confederates, which will be instituted at the proper time.

Charles O'Conor, whom many think a native of Ireland, is a born New Yorker, and began life as a newsboy in that city. His father, having taken part in the Irish rebellion of '98, was imprisoned for some time, and finally released on condition that he would quit his native land, which he did, coming to America, in the early part of the century, with a fierce hatred of England and the English. At the outbreak of the war of 1812 O'Conor, in order to have the luxury of denouncing the odious British in print as well as speech, established a weekly which he called "The War."

Justice James Lentell presided in the Police Court to-day, Judge Jayne having been subpœnaed before the Police Court in San Francisco, as a witness.

The Transcript appears to have abandoned its twice announced purpose of libeling Dr. Mauzy, as it contained not a word about that gentleman this morning.

Lieutenant George M. Wheeler, U. S. Topographical Engineers, whose explorations of and reports on the hitherto unknown regions of California, Nevada and Arizona have added so much to our knowledge of a rich mineral region, is a passenger by the overland train due here this afternoon.

They do things differently over in San Francisco. Over there, when a mother commits an offense they put her in prison and leave her infant out to starve, while here in Oakland they imprison both mother and babe for trying to save the life of a husband and father, and leave the infant to starve in a cell.

A grand testimonial moon-light ball will be given by the Oakland Social Club, the proceeds to be donated for the benefit of the widow of the late Frank Hodgin, the switchman who lost his life in trying to save the lad Bernstein who was drowned at Long Wharf on Saturday evening. Due notice will be given of the time and place of the affair.

The New York "Graphic" finds a moral in the sad case of Dr. Ayer. It is that when mind is "shoved, forced, pressed, and crammed into one idea, at last that idea dominates and masters the man." The Doctor had accumulated $15,000,000 by unremitting industry, and now he wanders about the grounds of a private asylum, vainly begging the loan of $10, while the "guardians" of his property receive $15,000 or $20,000 a year for taking care of it.

Hayes and the Silver Question.

Petulent Ben. Butler Growling at Hayes.

Ben. Butler Disgruntled.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A World Washington special says: A delegation called on General Butler to-day to bespeak his influence for a candidate for office. Butler said: "Gentlemen, you have come to the wrong man. I have no influence at the White House, and no disposition to ask favors of the President. If you want your friend appointed, go ask Corcoran, General Gordon and others of their patriotic antecedents. The President sent for Corcoran, and requested him to name a man he wanted for the District Commissionership. He mentioned Archibald Campbell for he is a great Statesman. He has instituted a new departure. No more money to be spent on elections. I have heretofore contributed to the extent of my means for the purchase of lanterns and the painting of transparencies, but this tax is no longer to be endured. People hereafter are to rush greedily to the polls, trampling over each other. If you don't want to ask Corcoran to ask the President—as it is generally understood both Republican and Democratic parties are deceased, and the old Whig party is born again—go out to some graveyard and transcribe the names of the defunct members of that organization from their tombstones to your petitions, and you will stand a chance of getting what you ask for. I did ask one favor of the President. When I went to New Orleans I had assigned to the care of my staff and self a distinguished surgeon. He fell heroically at his post the victim to his professional and patriot duty. Not long ago I received a touching letter from his son, asking for the appointment to the Annapolis Academy. I went to see the President, and showed him the letter. I told him the story of his father's life and death. I said to him: "I have the nomination in my district, but would have to smuggle the boy through. Others do this, but I won't. The President said: "I have three appointments; this boy shall have one of them." I left satisfied. The appointments were made, but this boy was not one of them. The fathers of two of them had contributed about as much for the preservation of the Union as Corcoran and Gordon.

Hayes and the Silver Question.

The Times says: The President's position in regard to the silver question is either purposely misrepresented or he is preparing to make concessions to one of the most foolish and most dishonest financial theories of our time. The restoration of the old silver dollar would simply mean an effort on the part of the United States to regulate its monetary concerns without reference to those of the rest of the civilized world; to drive what all nations regard as coin out of the country, and to render the promise of resumption in 1879 impossible of fulfillment. It would mean, further, a deliberate attempt to cheat the foreign and domestic creditor by paying him in depreciated coinage; to cheat labor by lowering the values of its accumulations in savings and the purchasing power of its wages. That people who are unable to pay 100 cents on the dollar would be sensibly relieved by a permission to pay 93 cents on the dollar as a somewhat visionary expectation. That our merchants and National credit would suffer from any such experiment, and would receive a shock from which neither would recover, seems to us too plain to require demonstration. If the President is really a convert to the silver delusion, he is certainly not the first public man who has done good service against paper inflation, who is about to tend himself to the equally dangerous proposal of deteriorating our currency by the unlimited introduction of silver. That is a kind of business which ought to be left to fraudulent debtors, demagogues and Democrats, and which can only be carried out successfully by a political combination mainly composed of these three elements. We have the word of John G. Thompson of Ohio that the Democrats of that State will demand, among other things, the unconditional repeal of the State clause in the Resumption Act and the restoration of the silver dollar as a legal tender for all debts, public or private. They expect to be able to carry Ohio on these issues, and they probably will if the Republicans attempt any weak temporizing, after the fashion of Indiana.

The Illinois Tornado.

CINCINNATI, O., June 5th.—Mt. Carmel, Illinois, which was struck by a tornado last evening, is a thriving town of about 3,000 inhabitants, on the Cairo and Vincennes Railroad. The most prominent buildings destroyed by the hurricane were the Court-house, two newspaper offices and three churches—the finest in Southern Illinois. Two school-houses, about twenty business houses, and about a hundred residences, were destroyed or damaged either by the wind or fire. The loss is estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000. The same storm damaged a number of buildings in other towns lying in its pathway. At Mattson, Illinois, the residence of Willis Walkup was thrown into the street and turned bottom side up, wounding Mrs. Walkup seriously.

CINCINNATI, June 5th. The Commercial has the following account of the disaster at Mt. Carmel, Illinois: A terrible tornado passed over the town about 3:30 last evening. It struck the town on the south end of Cherry street, passed almost due north, taking in about one square east and west, destroying almost everything in its course. Twenty-two dead bodies have been found thus far, as follows: George Watkins, Wm. Newkirk, Geo. Bryan, S. Goodrich, Fred. Gocke, J. Masterson's child John Ferris, Mrs Burton, John. A. Edgar, Charles, Norman, Benjamin Ballard, George Moore, Willie Walter, John Long, James Highee, Miss Stockmyer, James Peel, Mrs. Dolph Dyer Lathrop, D. Lebaner, C. L. Poole. The damage to property is estimated at $300,000. The fire was finally subdued after six hours steady work by the firemen. Many were wounded whose names can not now be ascertained. The estimate of losses cannot now be determined, as many farmers were in from the country whose teams were scattered among the debris. Physicians were brought from Carmi and adjoining towns by special trains to assist in the care of the wounded.

General Crook on Utah—As Quiet as Massachusetts and as Far from War.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The Times Salt Salt Lake special says: General Crook expresses the opinion that no more troops are needed in Utah; that, as far as he can see, Utah is as peaceful as ever before.

The alleged attempted assassination of a correspondent of a New York journal seems to be generally discredited. I am now at the same hotel, and I do not see how it could have been possible. Even the alleged attempted assassination, which was bloodless, is not laid to Mormon agents. The Territory is as quiet as Massachusetts or Connecticut, and as far from war or bloodshed.

Missing Sailors Rescued.

John Oakes, George Melon, Charles Danielson and William Anderson, from the crew of the schooner "Rebecca Bartlett" of this port, who were reported missing with Dories on the 25th ultimo, were picked up five days afterwards on the great banks by the brig "Catherine." They were without food or water when recovered, and were well-nigh exhausted.

FOREIGN NEWS.

England and the Suez Canal

LONDON, June 5th.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, a dispatch was laid on the table addressed by Lord Derby to Lord Lyons, British Ambassador at Paris. The dispatch is dated May 16th. Lord Derby informs Lord Lyons that Great Britain has declined the proposal of M. de Lesseps to keep open the Suez Canal to all nations, and had intimated to Russia that an attempt to blockade or otherwise to intefere with the canal or its approaches would be regarded by England as a menace to India, and a grave injury to the commerce of the world incompatible with the maintenance of the British attitude of passive neutrality. At the time it was intimated to the Porte and Khedive that England was firmly determined not to permit the canal to be made the scene of a any combat or other warlike operations.

NEW YORK, June 5th.—A special from Rustchuk says: The Turks took possession of the heights in the rear of Gruodevo and opened fire on the enemy this morning. Madame Wagner is said to be a woman of striking personal appearance, resembling strongly in features her father, Franz Liszt; she has large black eyes and beautiful teeth, a tall and graceful presence, and in her youth must have been remarkably handsome. She possesses high intellectual capacity, great energy and will, and is quite indispensable to the composer, whose genius she worshiped long before she married him.

AS GOD WILL.

If I were told that I must die to-morrow,
That the next sun
Which slides should bear me past all fear and sorrow
For any one,
All the long night, and all the journey through,
What should I do?

I do not think that I should shrink or falter,
But just go on,
Inflame my work, nor change nor seek to alter,
Aught that is done,
But rise and move and love and smile and pray,
For one more day.

And lying down at night for a last sleeping
Way in that one
Which hastens ever, "Lord within thy keeping
How should I fear?
And when to-morrow brings Thee nearer still,
Be Thou Thy Will."

I might not sleep for awe; but peaceful, tender,
My scent would lie
All the night long; and, when the morning splendor
Flushed o'er the sky,
I think that I could smile, could calmly say,
"It is his day."

But if a wondrous hand from the blue yonder
Held out a scroll
On which my life was writ, and with wonder
Behold unroll
To a long century's end its mystic glow,
What should I do?

What could I do, O blessed Guide and Master,
Other than this:
Still go on as now, not slower, faster,
Not fear to miss
The road, although so very long it be,
While led by Thee.

Step by step, feeling Thou art close beside me,
Although unseen;
Through thorns, through flowers, whether the tempest chide Thee,
Or heaven serene—
Assured Thy faithfulness cannot betray,
Nor love decay.

I may not know, my God; no hand revealeth
Thy counsels wise;
Along the path no deepening shadow stealeth,
No voice replies
To all my questioning thought, the time to tell,
And it as well.

Let me keep on, abiding and unfearing,
Thy will always,
Through a long century's ripe fruition,
Or a short day's,
Then can't not come too soon and I can wait,
If Thou come late.

The daily requisitions upon the the Third Assistant Postmaster-General for postage stamps and stamped envelopes lately show a steady increase, indicative of a marked revival of business throughout the country. Yesterday, exclusive of postal cards, the requisitions filled by the Department aggregated 6,247,200 stamps and stamped envelopes of various denominations, with a face value of $147,769.

Judge Barrett of New York yesterday rendered a decision in which he holds that a law of the, Longshore Union Protective Association, making it compulsory on members not to work for less than forty cents per hour, is void, as being against public safety, and members of the Association dismissed for its violation must be reinstated. This decision affects 800 members of the Union who were expelled for disobedience of the said law, as well as trades-unionism generally.

SAN FRANCISCO BREVITIES.

It cost the city $26,987 25 to light the streets and public buildings in May.

Assistant United States Treasurer Sherman reported that his receipts in May amounted to $1,709,429.

Archbishop Alemany has gone on a visit to Portland, Oregon, where he is the guest of Archbishop Beaubeat.

Yesterday Judge Dwinelle granted the First Baptist Church permission to mortgage its property, situated on Tyler street, near Jones, for $3,000, in addition to the $25,600 already borrowed, to complete the work of constructing the new church building.

The longshoremen employed at the North Point Warehouse instituted a strike yesterday, and some little commotion was created during the afternoon by the efforts of the strikers to prevent others from taking their places on the wharf. The wages have been reduced from 50 to 30 cents per hour.

At the Crown Point elevation yesterday, the regular ticket was elected as follows: J. P. Jackson, A. K. P. Harmon, J. D. Fry, J. H. Dobinson and C. L. Weller. The present liabilities of the Company are $71,346 06, as against assessments other than cash on hand, of which there is none, valued at $163,462 39.

The Pioneers.

The Society of California, which embraces many members resident in Oakland, held its regular monthly meeting in San Francisco last evening. An amendment to the Constitution providing that the Directors should hold office for two years, and that half of them should be elected every year was laid on the table. F. Vassault, O. P. Sutton, H. L. King, A. M. Ebbetts, P. White, W. R. Wheaton and S. R. Harris were appointed a Committee to nominate a regular ticket for the election to be held on the 7th of July, with instructions to report on or before the 23d of June, so that in case there should be any dissatisfaction with their ticket there would be time to organize an opposition.

Like the Others.

The latest "explanation" touching the inhumanity practiced toward Mrs. Cuse and her infant child is from the City Jailor, and like the others offered, is contradictory and unsatisfactory. He says the certainty that the woman and child would be released from prison "in a very short time, was the only thing that prevented him procuring milk for the child as soon as he learned its condition," and his other reason for keeping the infant locked in a cell for four or five hours without nourishment was that "the woman and child were fired out of jail in less than half an hour after he first learned that the child was not nursed at the breast." Owing to the fact that we have prepared to make immense additions to the Arcade in San Francisco, we have resolved to discontinue our business in this City.

Finding that in view of the extensive alterations, just commencing in our San Francisco House, and the tremendous increase in our business, we have been unable to devote proper attention to business here, and have consequently resolved on closing out at an early date. But

Before leaving Oakland

We will institute a sale which for

CHEAPNESS & SOLID BARGAINS

Has never been equalled on the Pacific Coast.

We shall mark down the whole stock to prices unheard of in the Dry Goods trade.

Having decided to carry over no goods to San Francisco, we shall actually and distinctly offer the most staple goods at prices much lower than even San Francisco merchants could purchase them.

In This Proportion!

We are aware that the prices we are prepared to submit will be the funeral note of the Dry Goods Houses of Oakland, but the march of progress demands that we make

A SHORT AND DECISIVE SALE,

—AT—

One-Third Their Value

We shall do so, even though by so doing we strike the death knell of the Dry Goods trade of this City.

THE MACKIE
Hydraulic Sewer Trap

THE UNDERSIGNED HAS JUST RETURNED from Washington with full and complete patents for his new Hydraulic Sewer Traps.

These traps are constructed on strictly scientific principles and are a perfect guard against the passage of sewer gases into the house. They are provided with a disinfecting chamber, which being filled once in three weeks throws down a disinfectant every time the water flows through the trap, keeping the pipes always sweet and clean. The gases most fatal to human life are those which, passing through the Syphon trap when filled with water, flow into our rooms almost if not quite inodorous, and it is especially to guard against the passage of the most dangerous refined gases that this trap is designed.

THE MACKIE HYDRAULIC SEWER TRAP has been examined by the most eminent Scientific men in this State, who have noted its workings in metal and glass, and also by our highest authorities on sewerage in the Eastern States, and in addition to their unanimous approval, they have expressed their opinion that it will be the means of saving hundreds of thousands of human lives, and for that purpose is the most important invention of the present century.

We are Prepared to Furnish

These traps with fair discount to the trade, or will sell State or Territory right. We guarantee their perfect working if properly used. The public are invited to visit our factory, corner of Valley and Locust (23) streets, Oakland, and watch their working in metal and glass.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

WARNING.

I beg to notify that I will certainly prosecute to the fullest extent of the law, all infringements of my inventions, or ANY PARTS THEREOF, viz.:

Mackie's Sewer Connections.
Mackie's Sewer Traps with Stand, Pipe and Valve.
Mackie's Hydraulic Sewer Traps.

And the public are cautioned to be on their guard against buying except from myself or my authorized agents.

REDUCTION IN GAS

Important to Landlords and Gas Consumers.

SAFETY AND ECONOMY.

OFFICE OAKLAND GAS LIGHT CO.,
September, 16, 1876.

IN CONTINUANCE OF THE POLICY FOLlowed by this Company since its formation, and to lower its rates as warranted, the Oakland Gas Light Company hereby give notice, that from and after the 1st day of October next the price of gas will be reduced to $4 PER THOUSAND CUBIC FEET.

Considering the value of coal and labor, the limited use of gas and the distance between the points of consumption, Oakland is one of the most cheaply lighted cities in the Union.

Some of the advantages of cheap gas are:

1st. A daily saving in the cost of one of the necessaries of life.

2d. A decrease in the number of fires caused by the use of the dangerous distillates of Petroleum.

3d. A saving of human life by substituting stationary lights for the brittle of lamps.

It is hoped that this further reduction will be favorably accepted by the public, and that the Company will receive many accessions to the number of its consumers.

V. L. EASTLAND,
Superintendent Oakland Gas Light Co.

NOTICE OF CAUTION.

NOTICE is hereby given that the parties who are representing themselves as working or soliciting for us as distributors are IMPOSTORS, as no person is employed by us except MR. C. H. RUTHERFORD, who is a MAN, and not a HOODLUM OF A BOY, who will and does do our work honestly and faithfully.

A CARD.

The General Principles of Baunscheidtism.

Since the arrest of DR. RENKEN for the practice of the genuine Baunscheidt healing method, there has been so much said about it in the papers, and so many people have thereby been led to make inquiries regarding this new mode of reaching disease, that I feel it my duty to state, for the general benefit, some of the principles of the action of genuine BAUNSCHEIDT, LIFE-RESTORER OLEUM in removing the various kinds of disease from the remotest parts of the human system.

THE OLEUM.

1st.—The Oleum is directly introduced into the blood upon the principle of innoculation, where, by a delicate chemical action, it soon dissolves and removes disease.

2d.—The life-principle contained within the oleum is opposite in character and nature to that of disease, and when these two (the Oleum and disease) come in contact with each other the opposite dynamic power of the Oleum soon overcomes that of disease; hence disease has to depart the system, and thus the combined action of the life-principles of the Oleum and the human body, together, soon master the most stubborn of old chronic cases, where the medicated drug-swallowing methods of Allopathy have ignominiously failed.

THE LEBENSWECKER.

3d.—The Lebenswecker (or life-restorer) is the instrument used to puncture the skin and thus allow the Oleum to immediately enter the blood—also, the punctures made by the Lebenswecker becomes a local point through which disease is soon driven out. The act of circulation carries the Oleum to the remotest parts, and is thus instantly brought in contact with the life-principle of disease, which is soon overcome by the superior chemical dynamic principle of life contained within the Oleum. In simple language, the Oleum reaches and kills disease, whose dead carcass is driven out of the system through passage-points made by the Lebenswecker, and also through the natural channels of the body.

4th.—By this METHOD or cure the blood is radically purified of all poisonous virus, of all disease, and the machinery of the delicate organs of mind and body is allowed to perform its functions in a healthy, normal manner. The blood then carries with itself and deposits where required, all the essential elements of material and life required to build up and keep in repair every organ of mind and body. The process of digestion, respiration and secretion then operates like clock-work, and the functions work and keep time to, and fulfil the requirements of a healthy being. Our aches and pains then cease, we love God and man the more, and society is freed of the influence (disease) that causes crime, we walk forth, a happy, healthy man!

☞ By the Baunscheidt mode of treatment every man and woman of ordinary intelligence may soon become his or her own physician, and thus avoid being poisoned by Allopathic quacks, and all such medical vampires.

The principles of Baunscheidtism are easily understood. No vague theories nor speculative mysteries surround it; no recourse is made to a dead language to clothe its terms, and beg for it a spurious respectability; no pedantic, quack display of medical technology.

Baunscheidt Lebenswecker Oleum, is a God-given remedy, absolute and specific, simple and true, for all laymen to acquire and possess, and thus be free from the greatest of curses, a mercenary, money-making, drug-poisoning M. D.
